

Beyond Transparency

CONFERENCE PROGRAMME

WELCOME TO THE EITI CONFERENCE

Welcome to the 6th EITI Global Conference. This Conference marks the launch of the new EITI Standard which encourages implementing countries to make their EITI processes more relevant and influential.

The EITI has made a lot of progress with over a trillion dollars of payments in the 33 countries that have produced reports to date. In many countries this has led to deeper and better informed debate about governance and taxation. In others, more work is needed to link the EITI to public debate and related public policy reforms.

The Conference is an opportunity to learn lessons, to discuss challenges and to be inspired by those that have provided leadership. It is important that the Conference is centred around the EITI National Expo. Participants are invited to learn directly from those responsible for driving the process in each of the nearly forty implementing countries.

We encourage you to make use of this opportunity. As part of the Conference, we will also be holding an EITI Members' Meeting. A key task for the Members will be to appoint a new EITI Board.

The Conference is a milestone for the EITI. The past two years have seen some important strides towards meeting the EITI Principles. Drawing on what we have learned, the attention is shifting to the quality of our information and ensuring that the EITI process adds greater value. While there is still a long way to go to ensure that these gains happen systematically, the new EITI Standard will bring us further towards delivering on the aspiration laid down in the EITI Principles: to ensure that these resources bring lasting benefit to the people.

PARALLEL SESSION GROUP 1
The impact of the EITI

The first group of parallel sessions focuses on lessons learnt from EITI implementation so far.

13:00 – 15:00

1. EITI MSGs: the roles of the government, civil society and companies

● Parkside Auditorium

The heart of the EITI process is the MSG. The EITI can only succeed if government, companies and civil society work together to set clear objectives and develop inclusive processes. This session will focus on the successes and challenges in establishing and strengthening these coalitions, engaging civil society and communicating to the public.

Moderator: Ian Wood, VP Community Relations and Sustainability, BHP Billiton, Australia

Celestin Vunabandi Kanyamihigo, Minister of Planning, Democratic Republic of Congo

The evolution of the EITI

The second group of parallel sessions focuses on new elements of the EITI Standard, highlighting innovative activities planned and underway in implementing countries.

11:00 – 12:30

5. The EITI, contract and licensing transparency

● Parkside Auditorium

Some EITI stakeholders argue that contract transparency is essential so that EITI Reports can be used to identify whether the right amount of tax has been paid. Others have expressed concern that contract disclosure may reveal commercially sensitive information and undermine competition. This session will explore how these opportunities and challenges can be addressed.

Moderator: Arvinn Eikeland Gadgil, Deputy Minister for International Development, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Norway

11:00 – 12:30

6. Using the EITI to address expenditure and forecasting

● Parkside 110A

The EITI Principles, whilst recognising that the ‘management of natural resource wealth for the benefit of a country’s citizens is in the domain of sovereign governments’, also recognise the importance of effective management of revenues and expenditures. This session will explore how the EITI can be used to address the allocation and effectiveness of public spending of extractive industry revenues.

Moderator: Michael Ross, Department of Political Science, UCLA

Natalia Gutierrez, Vice Minister of Mining, Ministry of Energy and Mines, Colombia

Edward Bickham, Adviser, ICMM

11:00 – 12:30

7. Engaging state owned enterprises (SOEs) in the EITI

● Parkside 110B

A priority for the EITI is to ensure greater support and engagement from SOEs. In many countries, these companies play a leading role in the management of the extractive industries, managing large resources and revenues on behalf of their citizens. This session will explore opportunities to strengthen the engagement of SOEs in the EITI process.

Moderator: Shahmar Movsumov, Executive Director, State Oil Fund, Azerbaijan
